King George Pleads for Peace

BRITAIN'S RULER SPEAKS BEFORE ROBED OFFICIALS

Unceasing Effort To End Strife In Spain And Far East Pledged

PARLIAMENT COLORFUL

Leopold and Carol Invited For Conferences

LONDON, Oct. 26—(UP)—King George, addressing his Parliament for the first time in a speech from the throne, pledged his government today to work unceasingly for peace in Spain and in the Far East.

But he pledged the government also to maintain the racing pace of its rearmament program—which special attention to anti-aircraft defense—so that if war comes, the country will be ready for it.

Robed in a mantle of red and black, collared with ermine, the king addressed members of the Houses of Lords and Commons, the peers gorgeously attired in their robes of state, from his throne in the Lords' chamber.

Opening Follows Custom

"My relations with foreign powers continue to be friendly," the king said—the customary opening of the throne speech. He continued, discussing foreign affairs:

"My ministers have followed with growing concern the continuance of the conflict in Spain. It is their aim to do everything that lies within their power to assist toward restoration of peace among the Spanish people. They believe that strict application of the international policy of non-intervention in Spain will materially contribute to this end.

"The position in the Far East will continue to engage the earnest attention of my government, who will persist in their policy of attempting in co-operation with other governments, whether members of the League of Nations or not, to mitigate the suffering caused by the conflict and bring it to a conclusion.

LORDS NERVOUS AS KING GEORGE TALKS

LONDON, Oct. 26—(UP)—King George talked haltingly today in delivering his first speech from the throne at the state opening of a session of parliament.

The king for years had sought to rid himself of a tendency to stammer. He did not stammer today, observers in the gallery of the House of Lords noted. However, his speech was delivered jerkily.

Words would be bunched between pauses, some long and almost painful to his auditors.

Between the king's first words—"My Lords"—and the next—"you may be seated"—there was a pause of perhaps 10 seconds. Later in the speeches the pauses were longer than during the first part, and it was difficult to understand a few words.

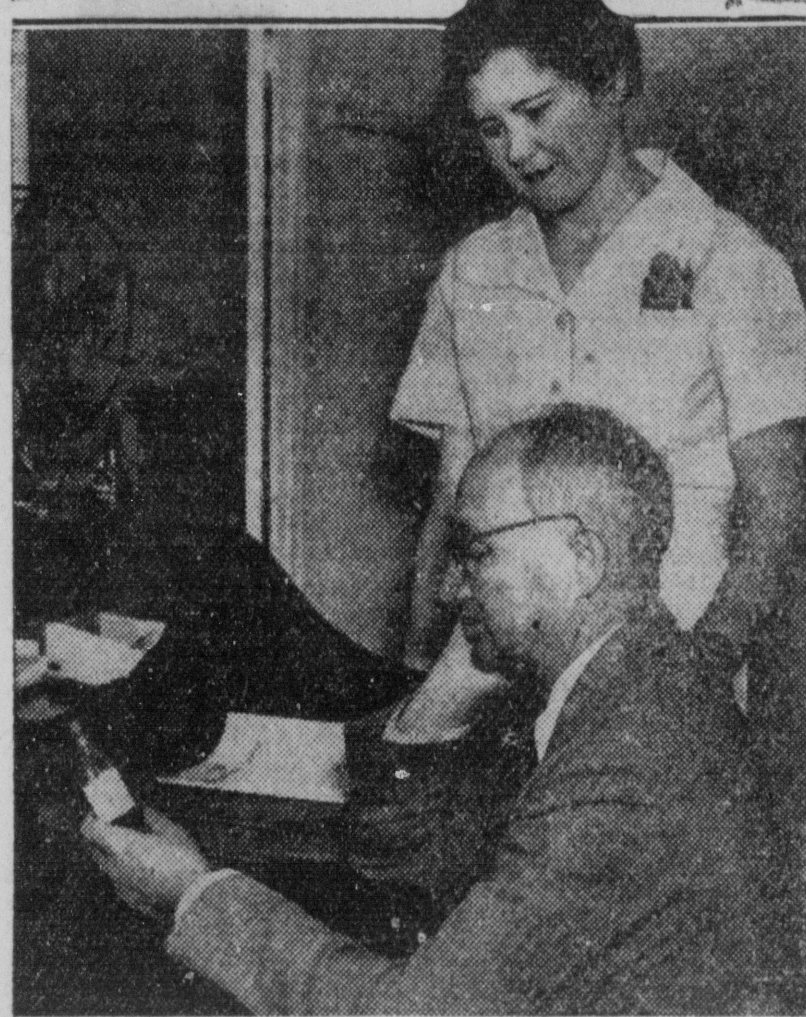

Those in the chamber coughed in embarrassment during the slow delivery of the speech.

Death Reaches for Her

NURSE Evelyn Sharbrough, of Mt. Olive, Miss., is pictured with Dr. A. S. Calhoun, who administered elixir of sulphanilamide to her. She was his thirteenth patient to get the drug, a powerful agent against infection. Six of the thirteen have died, but Miss Sharbrough works on, unafraid. Deaths traced to the drug now number thirty-six in the United States. Diethylene glycol, in which the drug was dissolved, is said to be the toxic agent. The manufacturer of the drug is recalling all shipments.

DRUG IS BLAMED FOR 47 DEATHS THROUGH NATION

CHICAGO, Oct. 26—(UP)—New testimony of the life-saving qualities of sulphanilamide was given today as medical authorities charged 47 deaths to an attempt to employ the drug in a new form. Lives were saved when sulphanilamide was used in its plain form—a white, crystalline powder.

Death resulted when the sulphanilamide was stirred into a glycol compound to form an elixir. Apparently diethylene glycol was the lethal factor.

Within a few hours of each other, these reports were made: By Drs. Louis T. Curry and Frank Wojniak of Rush Medical college, to the American College of Surgeons—11 patients suffer-

JAPAN EXPRESSES SORROW IN DEATH DURING AIR RAID

LONDON, Oct. 26—(UP)—Japan apologized formally to Great Britain today for an airplane attack on a British army outpost near Shanghai in which a rifleman of the Royal Ulster rifles was killed.

It was announced officially that Japanese Foreign Minister Koki Hirota handed Sir Robert Craigie, the British ambassador, the note of apology and asserted that when an investigation is completed the Japanese government will "deal suitably with the persons responsible for this incident."

The apology said Japan was prepared to make the necessary compensations for damage sustained by British subjects in the attack. It was expected to be the subject of a government statement in the house of commons.

The Ulster rifleman, W. McCowan, was killed on Saturday.

JOHN MONTAGUE GOES ON STAND TO TELL STORY

Friend of Movie Stars to Learn Fate in Robbery Case Late Tuesday

DEPOSITIONS ADMITTED

Crosby, Kibbee and Others Rally to Defense

ELIZABETHTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 26—(UP)—John Montague strode to the witness stand in Essex county court today and promised to tell "the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth" about his mysterious life.

His testimony came in the closing hours of his trial on charges that he was a thug and robber before he went to California and found fame and friends among movie stars.

Fifteen minutes earlier James Noonan, defense counsel, read depositions from Montague's friends in California, including Mark Kelly, newspaperman; Guy Kibbee, movie actor; Richard Arlen, movie actor; Andy Devine, movie actor; Trem Carr, motion picture producer; Bing Crosby, actor; Oliver Hardy, comedian; Robert McCowan, movie director; and the Rev. Victor Follen, Catholic priest.

These affidavits, admitted to the court record by consent of District Attorney Thomas McDonald, swore to Montague's good reputation for "honesty, peacefulness and quiet."

Montague was on the witness stand most of the morning and when he finished the defense rested. The case probably will go to the jury late today.

BANDIT, BELIEVED TO BE BIRD, HELD AFTER SHOOTING

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26—(UP)—A socialist stockbroker was near death today as police sought to establish the identity of the thief who shot him. They suspected a member of the Bird gang of midwestern gunmen.

C. Morgan Knight was wounded by a bullet allegedly fired by A. W. Gregg, 40, who told police he had recently been released from Joliet, Ill., prison.

The shooting occurred at the height of the afternoon shopping period in one of the city's largest department stores.

Police said Gregg hurdled the partition enclosing the cashier's cage and picked up $1240 in bills. He ran down eight flights of stairs to the main floor. Knight was shot when he attempted to halt Gregg.

Gregg finally was caught when a hotel bellboy, who had watched the chase, jammed the revolving door with his foot when Gregg attempted to enter the hotel.

HALLOWEEN OBSERVANCE IN CITY WILL BE QUIET

Circleville will have no public observance of Halloween. Reports from various civic organizations Tuesday revealed none plans to sponsor any type of a celebration. The last Halloween parade and contest staged by businessmen created very little interest. Few persons participated.

Businessmen believed Halloween follows too closely after Pumpkin Show to create much interest in a community observance.

MANSFIELD MAN TO GO ON TRIAL

Robert Frye, 28, Charged With Manslaughter

Hearing for Robert Frye, 28, of Mansfield, on a charge of second degree manslaughter is scheduled to open in Common Pleas court Thursday. Jurors have been ordered to report.

The charge against Frye resulted from the death of Miss Elsie Harvey, 18, of Wharton, W. Va., in an auto-pedestrian accident on Route 23, just south of Circleville, last June 27. Frye, who has been at liberty under a $1,000 bond, is alleged to have made a wide swing on a curve. Miss Harvey was believed to have been hitchhiking to her home.

George E. Gerhardt, prosecutor, said he would call about eight witnesses in the case. He expected to file his witness list Tuesday.

Character witnesses called for the defendant include T. M. Bell, acting chief of police; Alfred T. Sneringer, director of education, Mansfield reformatory; The Rev. Charles Sheriff, of St. Matthew's Lutheran church; The Rev. G. E. Swoyer, and F. A. Voegelé, all of Mansfield. They are to report Friday at 9 a. m.

GIRL WHO KILLED HER FATHER WILL ATTEND FUNERAL

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—(UP)—Authorities said today that 15-year-old Gladys Breitfeiler would be permitted to attend the funeral of her father. She killed him because "I was sure he was going to kill my mother."

She will be arraigned in children's court on a technical charge of juvenile delinquency. There is no provision in New York law to charge a child under 16 with murder.

Mrs. Minnie Breitfeiler, 34, defended her daughter. She said her husband, Charles, 36, was intoxicated and threatened her life. Gladys, she said, killed in self-defense.

"I stabbed him with a carving knife," the girl told police, "because he was beating my mother."

DEATH CHARGE PUT AGAINST HAWAIIAN

Prince Kawanakoa Held Without Bond After Girl, 21, Dies

HONOLULU, T. H., Oct. 26—(UP)—Prince David Kawanakoa, grandson of Hawaii's last king, today was charged with second degree murder for the death of Arvilla Kinslea, 21-year-old part-white girl, who bled to death in his Waikiki beach apartment Saturday night of cuts received during a drinking party.

The action was filed by Prosecutor John C. Kelley, who gained international fame in winning a conviction in the Massie case six years ago.

Grilled 48 Hours

The formal charges were entered after Prince David, black-haired playboy, had been questioned almost constantly for 48 hours about the manner of the death of the pretty island girl.

The prince, wearing only white duck trousers, which were stained with blood flowing from Miss Kinslea's neck wounds, was arrested when he called police and physicians to his apartment.

Prince David was ordered arraigned today and Defense Attorney Frank Thompson said he probably would waive preliminary hearing, permitting the case to go immediately before Circuit Judge H. A. Stafford.

Thompson indicated he would ask bail for the youth but Kelley announced he intended to demand that the prince's probation on a previous manslaughter charge be (Continued on Page Eight)

C.I.O. OFFERS PEACE PROGRAM

Right To Organize Mass Workers Asked

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26—(UP)—The Committee for Industrial Organization today offered to make peace with the American Federation of Labor peace in exchange for the right to organize mass production workers and to retain complete autonomy inside the framework of the federation.

The proposal came with dramatic suddenness before a peace conference in which 10 C. I. O. delegates and three from the A. F. of L. were attempting to end organized labor's two-year civil war.

The conference, caught unprepared by the proposal, adjourned almost immediately after receiving the plan to await a reply, and perhaps a counter proposal, from the federation.

A. F. of L. spokesmen said their answer will be ready when the conference reconvenes at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Federation conferees inferred that breadth of the proposals caught them unprepared.

"The proposal submitted by the C. I. O. is in such broad terms that we are unable to give any statement in respect to the proposal at this time," they said in a statement.

"We sought an explanation of the proposal but were unable to get any helpful information from the committee of the C. I. O. this morning."

The project includes Fairfield, Perry and Pickaway counties, Fairfield being the only one in which work has been started.

Attacking Soldiers Tear Up Nanking Railroad to Trap Defenders

FIGHTERS EXHAUSTED

Tazang and Miaohang Fall In Bitter Battles

SHANGHAI, Oct. 26—(UP)—Japanese shock troops smashed through the Chinese defense lines at two key points of the blood-soaked Shanghai battle front today.

The momentum of a ferocious drive, carried the Japanese to the Shanghai-Nanking railroad tracks which they began to destroy in hope of cutting off tens of thousands of Chinese troops in the Chapei district of northern Shanghai.

Foreign military experts said that the next 24 hours should tell whether the Chinese could withdraw in order and force to their second line of defense, the long-prepared Chiang Kai-Shek line of steel, concrete and barbed wire fortifications, or were faced with disaster.

Chinese spokesmen admitted the gains which the Japanese joyously announced. The Japanese had broken through at Tazang, north of Shanghai; and at Miaohang, slightly to the east of Tazang.

OHIOAN TO BACK ACT TO STERILIZE SEX CRIMINALS

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26—(UP)—A bill authorizing sterilization of sex criminals will be introduced in the general assembly at the coming special session, Rep. George F. Ketterer, Democrat, Columbus, said today.

"Because of this new wave of sex crimes," Ketterer said, "I have been asked by a group of women to sponsor a sterilization bill."

"These women are preparing to circulate a petition to accompany the bill when it is introduced."

"I have agreed to sponsor the legislation and am endeavoring to get an interview with Governor Davey to try to persuade him to include consideration of such a bill in his call for the special session."

"Although I have not worked out all details of the bill I believe it should include all types of sex criminals as well as the more hopeless cases of feeble minded."

"This idea is not new. It is in effect in several states and there is no reason why Ohio should permit these persons to continue to commit crimes."

JAPAN TO LOSE WAR IN CHINA, STUDENT SAYS

Tokyo is Confronted By Trouble at Home, Tien Cheng Claims

BANKRUPTCY IS PREDICTED
Embargo of United States Helps Aggressor

Economic suicide with ultimate bankruptcy for Japan was the prediction, Monday evening, of Tien Cheng, Chinese student at Ohio State university, when he addressed the Kiwanis club at Hanley's tearoom. Tien Cheng discussed many phases of the Sino-Japanese war, as yet undeclared.

He declared, in precise English, that Japan is not strong enough, financially or physically, to defeat China in a war of several years' duration which this one is expected to be.

"Japan is facing serious difficulties at home," Tien Cheng said, "with a large part of the population opposing the aggressive attitude of the militarists who are now in power. If this trouble at home should become a little more intense it is not difficult to determine what would happen to Japan's attack on China."

Embargo Assailed
The speaker took the United States to task for invoking a partial arms embargo for "assisting Japan and hurting China". He said the embargo which prevents government vessels from carrying arms to belligerents but permits private ships to do so has helped the Tokyo government. "Private vessels," he said, "have no difficulty in reaching Japan with war equipment, but privately-owned ships bound for China with arms must run a blockade set up all along the Chinese coast by the Japanese."

He praised Chiang Kai-Shek, the Chinese commander-in-chief, for uniting the nation and declared that the war had done much to bring the Chinese people together as a unit. He cited recent action of the communist forces in joining the Nationalist government to stamp out the Japanese.

Others To Stay Out
Cheng declared that he believed no other power would enter the war because of the problems involved. "Russia must watch Germany and Italy in addition to Japan," he declared. "Great Britain has Italy and the Spanish situation to worry about, and the United States is trying to assist but is not placing itself in danger of warfare."

He urged an economic boycott of Japan's products as one means of halting the war. "The quicker Japan can be thrown into bankruptcy the quicker the war will end," Cheng said, "and a boycott is one way to assure bankruptcy, if it is an effective boycott."

Tien Cheng followed Dr. Ira Jones, superintendent of the Methodist church district, who discussed Japan's attempt to conquer China. Dr. Jones did not take the Japanese side, but discussed Tokyo's stand after having served for eight years in church work in Japan.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

As the author who wrote a perfect motion picture story a long time before the motion picture was a commercial reality, Anthony Hope Hawkins, who wrote under the name of Anthony Hope, would possess one sound claim to distinction, were he lacking any other.

This is the belief of John Cromwell, who directed Hope's most famous work, "The Prisoner of Zenda," David O. Selznick's production for Selznick International Pictures, which is showing for the last times tonight at the Cliftona theatre with Ronald Colman, Madeleine Carroll and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. heading the cast. Says Cromwell: "When 'Zenda' was written at the turn of the century motion pictures were indeed in their infancy, so Hope could hardly be accused of writing with one eye on Hollywood, which was then nothing but a cattle range with a few scattered fruit groves."

Insurance Man Met

Met a youngster today who carried a good-sized book with him and at first, thought he was a meter reader and second thought, felt he was a number writer, but knew he would get wise soon or get into the "boose." But these guesses both proved wrong. We asked him "straight out" what he was doing with that big book and offered to assist him if he needed any help to carry it around, or anything. Then when he "opened up" and we found him an interesting chap. Showed us his book and said he was writing industrial insurance, same as our Charles Cloud writes, but for a different company. Said he had been at it about nine months and had established what he thought was a nice business for a beginner. This boy we are telling you about is Kenneth Beavers, born and reared near Commercial Point and a graduate of the high school there. Asked him in his opinion, how it happens he is having this thing he calls success? He quickly came back with "hard work, stick to it, and a big supply of intestines."

George Not Harry

Some several days ago when the Dr. Schiff office building was nearing its final stages of construction, we made mention of George Wellington being the all around handy man, keeping everything neat and clean about the place. But we failed to call him "George," we credited Harry with all this good work, which was being well done. Glad to correct our mistake. Maybe you didn't, but we understood you to say there are more than 100 families who have children in our local schools. And if the superintendent and the teachers are willing and give us a little assistance, we'll find out and tell you about it.

NEW SYSTEM ADVISED

Growth In Business Seen
In 15 Years

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26 — (UP) — The state of Ohio has land, buildings, supplies and equipment worth $132,245,683.40, according to a report submitted today to Governor Davey by accountants headed by John H. Turner, Cleveland, who recently completed an examination of the state auditor's department and its records.

The inventory of the state's properties included the following items: buildings, $68,712,426.98; land, $35,413,031.72; equipment, $21,149,471.38; liquor stocks, $2,481,797.89; supplies, $1,668,043.82; materials, $1,594,940.31; and museum collection, $1,225,971.31.

The more than $21,000,000 of equipment included the following items: educational equipment, $9,506,799.99; tools and machinery, $3,147,728.72; household equipment, $2,344,874.99; office, $2,042,729.39; wearing apparel, $1,063,488.20; agricultural equipment, $760,075.48; live stock, $443,452.98; medical and surgical equipment, $224,062.99; and miscellaneous, $1,407,661.78.

Business Increases

Showing a striking growth in the magnitude of the state's business, the report disclosed that in 1921 the auditor issued 283,262 warrants totaling $47,808,266.16, and in 1936 issued 2,138,206 warrants totaling $262,916,384.76.

The examination, required by law whenever the office of auditor changes hands, covered the 16 years that Joseph T. Tracy, Columbus, was state auditor, from 1921 to 1936, inclusive.

It criticized methods utilized in the department during that period, pointing out that many claims owed the state for years remained outstanding without efforts to collect, that no complete inventory of state properties was kept, that records fail to show the reason for compromising or cancelling many claims, and that the system of bookkeeping in general was antiquated.

System Advised

The report recommended installation of an adequate and modern system of accounting, making of greater efforts to collect claims owed the state, keeping of a perpetual inventory of state properties, and the installation of a modern filing system for important records.

Spokesmen of Labor's Peace Parley Shake Hands

In a momentous peace meeting in Washington, spokesmen of the rival labor organizations, the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization, join in an effort to heal the breach between the two. George Harrison, left, A. F. of L. spokesman, shakes hands with David Dubinsky, right, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' union and a strong C. I. O. man. In the center is Philip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee and chief lieutenant of John L. Lewis. Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers union, a C. I. O. affiliate, is pictured between Harrison and Murray.

Barking Spider Dies On Way to Radio Broadcast

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 26—(UP)—Spike, the barking spider, of uncertain origin and fleeting fame, was the victim today of his own artistic propensity. He died in a box en route to his first radio audition. This may be his last press notice.

He blew in with several of his breed during a tropical storm and was discovered by Dr. J. A. Rickles of Eagle Pass, Tex. The dentist submitted him to radio station WAOI, San Antonio, for a broadcast and entrusted him to the mails for delivery. He must have been jolted or suffocated in transit.

Every preparation was made to receive him, including a special messenger to deliver him from the postoffice. And Dr. Rickles had written how to handle him. "Gently," the instructions read. "Give him some room so he can hand head-downward by his hind legs and swing back and forth. Keep the room as dark as possible. He only barks at night so you might have to simulate a snore to get him started."

Bowl Arranged
A goldfish bowl, carefully lined with cotton for comfort, had been arranged beside a desk microphone for the performance. But it was all in vain. Spike's crate was his coffin. There wasn't a sign of life left when the little cardboard box was opened.

Dr. Rickles found Spike and four more like him, except they were larger and long slender legs. He had seen some of them before and they always appeared after a slight disturbance in the Gulf of Mexico.

They are brown, fuzzy, with small bodies and long slender legs. He sent one to the Texas A. and M. college biology department for identification, but nobody there could decide the variety of species to which it belonged. They had never seen one similar. It, too, was dead on arrival.

"When you get through with this one," Rickles told the radio station management, "please try your luck at getting him classified."

RADIO PROGRAMS ASSIST DEBATORS IN OHIO SCHOOLS

Radio is helping Pickaway county pupils to prepare for this year's debates in the Ohio High School Speech League.

Unicameral, or one-house, legislation is the subject for the state high school competition, and each Wednesday, from 10 to 10:30 a. m., Ohio State University's varsity debate squad broadcasts a discussion of some phase of the subject. The series will continue for eight weeks.

Among the radio stations carrying the broadcasts are WOSU, Columbus; WCLE, formerly WJAY, Cleveland; WPAY, Portsmouth; WHRC, Canton. Other stations are being added to the chain.

Professor James Carrell, of Ohio State's department of speech, is director of the League. He reports more entries to date than in any previous year.

HEALTH LEAGUERS ANNOUNCE DATES FOR ANNUAL SALE

Announcement was made in Columbus today by the Ohio Public Health Association, which has charge of the annual sale of Christmas Health Seals throughout the state, that the Pickaway County Public Health League would again have charge this year of the Christmas Seal Sale in Pickaway county and that Elizabeth Dunlap, 137 W. Franklin street, would serve as Christmas Seal Sale chairman. The sale will open Thanksgiving and will close Christmas. The war on tuberculosis in the United States is financed chiefly through the annual sale of Christmas Health Seals. The campaign in Pickaway county will be carried on through personal solicitation and mail and school sales and the program for the coming year includes, among other things, health education and X-ray films.

THE LESSON OF RHEIMS

RHEIMS Cathedral has just been newly consecrated and returned to worship.
A little more than twenty-three years after the first German shells struck it, and nineteen years after the end of the war that ragged around Rheims from 1914 to 1918, the painstaking restoration work is finished.

The shattered statues, stained glass
and other art treasures could not be restored, but it was possible to repair and strengthen enough of the great Gothic masterpiece to make it once more a thing of beauty, historic interest and religious service. Americans who care about such treasures are glad that John D. Rockefeller Jr. helped generously toward this work.

The re-opened cathedral, however, awakens some less happy thoughts and emotions. It is conceivable that the restored Rheims may be shattered again, if a great European war develops out of the Spanish conflict. War is destroying churches and temples and art treasures in several parts of the world today and threatens to spread like a destroying conflagration until it wrecks not only man's material creations but his very civilization.

THE HELEN KELLER TRIBUTE

MARCH 3, 1938, will be the fiftieth anniversary of the meeting between Helen Keller and her former teacher, the late Mrs. Ann Sullivan Macy. That meeting has meant so much to society, and particularly to the blind and deaf, that it is to be made the occasion of national observance. Helen Keller Day will be the high point in nearly six months of educational work carried on by the American Foundation for the Blind which is raising by popular subscription a fund of $2,000-000 to "perpetuate and extend" Miss Keller's great humanitarian work.

Many other organizations are cooperating in the whole program, part of which is already started. Many prominent persons — statesmen, educators, leaders in various fields—will contribute their names and service to its heartwarming purpose. There will be special talks in public schools and before club groups.

The Foundation and the assisting groups promote first the interests of the blind and deaf. At the same time, they hope to create a new attitude toward these people on the part of those who see and hear normally. Through all this special activity, the Foundation will continue its regular service to individuals, such as the sale of talking book machines and braille typewriters to the blind at the cost of manufacture. And above all, it will work toward reducing the number of future
sightless persons.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Up to learn that since the Pumpkin Show is past Indian Summer has decided on a visit, and not unwelcome. Coffee and then away to the post, noting everywhere debris of the big exhibit. Wonder why the street department does not insist that the proprietors of various concessions and shows leave the streets as clean as they find them. Certainly that would save the city many dollars every year.

An orchid to the enforcement officials for maintaining such fine order last week in the face of extreme difficulties. Handling such great crowds is not an easy task. See by the papers that the A. F. of L. and C. I. O. are in conference aimed at peace,
but with as little chance of achieving the goal as a session of European diplomats. Too much power and plunder there to divide and the scrivener believes it will be a war to the death with the people, as usual, footing the bill. Also noted that

2,000,000 more acres have been withdrawn from cotton production. Those who believe they are not interested in that are not buyers of cotton goods.

Everywhere sighs of relief
that the Pumpkin Show is past, but everyone will be looking forward toward the 1938 edition
with enthusiasm when the time comes. Business was generally good during the four day event.
Next year the scrivener hopes that the concessions are placed back to back in the middle of the street so that merchants, who make the show possible by considerable donations, may have at least an even break with the whistle hawks, weight
guessers and Sammy the ape.
And the time has come, too,
when the size of tents placed on the streets should be limited.
The fronts of several stores were barricaded with sandbags as though in preparation for an aerial attack, the sandbags being used to hold rope raps of big tents. Saw several persons fall over the bags, but luckily
no one was injured.

Called on Bud Harden to view
the new Chevies and found them attractive cars. And then there are the Buicks, Oldsmobiles, Fords, Studebakers,
Dodge, Plymouths, Willies, Chryslers or what car do you prefer, all making strong bids
for first choice, and all offering more for the dollar than any other investment of the day.
Would much rather have my money in a new car right now than in stocks that are being kicked around in Wall street. If any.

Noted activity at the Grand theatre that soon is to undergo complete remodeling. Chatted with a pessimistic merchant who declared that the only ray of sunshine is that this is an agricultural community rather than an industrial one. He sees lots of industrial trouble ahead, but the scrivener banks but little on business forecasts, recalling that Roger Babson, the greatest of all business prophets, has been miscalculating his shots with great regularity in the last several months.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

SPLIT MAY COME

WASHINGTON—The behind-the-scenes situation on the highly touted new agricultural legislation that the President is demanding of Congress is like the Ancient Mariner adrift in the ocean: "Water,
water, everywhere, nor any drop to drink."

All hands are for the farm bill,
including the President, Secretary Wallace, Congress and the farmers. But on the vital question of what kind of bill is wanted, there is a deep, wide chasm of difference of opinion. Also, the makings of another major Democratic blowup.

Roosevelt wants a bill in which the emphasis is on crop control. Wallace, deeply bitten by the presidential bug, is on both sides of the fence. He is for crop regulation, but not too much regulation.
He favors a plan that includes crop control, but only as a reserve measure.

On Capitol Hill, the Democratic moguls
in command of the agriculture committees are ice-cold to crop control. They have an entirely different idea of farm legislation.
They want a bill that puts no curb on production but gives the farmer a guaranteed price. What they are after is price stabilization by means of a government subsidy.

The formula most favored for this is the so-called domestic allotment plan.

Under this scheme the Government guarantees a "parity" price on that part of a crop required for normal domestic consumption. The surplus is "dumped" abroad at the best price that can be got for it, or stored in warehouses. The Treasury bears the cost of the difference between the "parity" price and the world price.

"CACTUS JACK" GARNER

Chairman of the House and Senate
agriculture committees are Representative Marvin Jones, a Texan, and Senator
"Cotton Ed" Smith, a South Carolinian.

The fact that these two Southerners, through the operation of the rule of seniority, head their respective committees is of the utmost importance because cotton is the explosive element in the farm bill fight.

At this point enters "Cactus Jack" Garner, grizzled Vice President of the United States and highly talented at giving the White House headaches. His interest is cotton.

Garner is very much opposed to crop control. He wants unlimited production and Government-guaranteed prices. Moreover, he has great influence not only with Jones and Smith but also with powerful sections of the Democratic membership in both houses of Congress.

Still further, Garner is a leader of the group that is bent on wresting control of the Democratic Party from the President in order to nominate a "safe" candidate in 1940.

"There is a decline in human greatness," says a moralist. Yes, we've noticed that head waiters are not what they used to be.

It's easier to understand Fascism when you know the origin of the word. It comes from "fascis," a bundle of rods carried before magistrates in ancient Rome, signifying that citizens who disobeyed them would be beaten.

DIET AND HEALTH

Sufficient Vitamin B Will Prevent Beri-Beri

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

BERI-BERI is a form of paralysis due to nerve degeneration which occurs almost exclusively in rice-eating countries. But not necessarily is it seen only in rice-eating populations.

For instance, a Danish whaling expedition reported as late as 1930, 51 cases of beri-beri occurring on one ship on which no whole meal bread was eaten.

In a prison in Elizabeth, N. J., white bread was used almost exclusively. The result was that no case of beri-beri was reported in that region for a period of one year following this event.

These facts have nothing to do with the controversy as to whether white bread or whole wheat bread is the most healthy. If wheat were the only article in the dietary which could provide Vitamin B, it is true that it would be healthier
to eat whole wheat bread.

Beri-Beri in Alcoholic Neuritis Beri-Beri occurs occasionally in the peculiar form of alcoholic neu-ritis. It was long supposed that this neuritis was due to the degen-eration of nerves by alcohol itself,

but it has been found that the use of concentrated Vitamin B will cure the neuritis after it occurs, and if the alcoholic will eat a mixed diet along with his alcohol, diet sufficiently mixed to contain Vitamin B, alcoholic neuritis will not develop.

A remarkable corollary of this occurrence of neuritis in alcoholics,
an exactly opposite picture was reported in a certain island in Polynesia. The natives there were in the habit of consuming an alcoholic beverage prepared from yeast.
Yeast is a good source of Vitamin
B. The League of Nations stepped in and prohibited its use. The result was that inebriety disappeared
among the adults only to be replaced by outbreaks of beri-beri among the breast-fed infants. The forbidden beverage had been their mainstay against beri-beri. Faced with this dilemma, the authorities permitted the reintroduction of the toddy, and the infant death rate fell from 50 to 7 per cent.

For the benefit of prohibitionists,
it may be known that no patented
rice or white flour—only whole meal flour and brown rice—may be purchased on this island now, so that the infants can get their Vitamin B without the necessity of having mama get a little bit intoxicated.

CHAPTER 37

"DON'T CRY, DEAREST," Tim
whispered when his declaration of love brought only tears to Alma's eyes. "Listen to me for just a moment. I've known now for weeks. And I've fought against it. Because it seemed disloyal to Esther, so soon. I shall never forget Esther—noting, nobody, not even you can blot her out, dear."

"But just lately I've had a curious feeling, like a message, as if Esther was trying to tell me something. . . . To tell me to go on, to win you, that she wouldn't mind. . . . She was fond of you, Alma. . . . I know now that I'm right; it's not disloyal. . . . I don't want to rush you. I know it can't be just yet. . . . But I must know, my dearest, if you will marry me.
Because, if not, life has really nothing more for me. . . ."

Alma spoke at last.
"Oh, Tim dear," she said, "I did so hope it wouldn't come to this."
Tim felt suddenly cold.

"Why not?" His voice was sharp and frightened.
"Because it's impossible, Tim.
Absolutely impossible."

"A syrupy voice came over the wireless. 'National program. This is the first news bulletin.
Copyright reserved. . . .'" Tim got up abruptly and switched off.

"Alma," he said. His eyes were staring in consternation and horror as he stood over her. "Do you mean you don't love me?"

She stirred unhappily. "Not that way, dear. I can't help it.
I'm very fond of you. I think you're one of the nicest men I've ever met. I've valued and enjoyed our friendship. I've been proud of it."

"Please don't spoil it, Tim. Because I know, if you want more,
I can never, never give it. I'm terribly sorry to have to hurt you, but I can't help it. Either one can or one can't, one always knows." Tim was not done. He was not without knowledge of his power.
He sat down again, and took Alma
in his arms.

"I can't take that answer,
Alma," he said. "You must love me; I can make you love me." He held her closely to him, kissed her hair, her eyes, her lips.

But Alma suddenly broke free.
She faced him with eyes cold and hostile.

"I didn't think you'd do that,
Tim. . . . Couldn't you take my word for it?"

All at once Tim felt weak. He looked at her with despair.
"Too soon," he muttered. "Perhaps some day. . . ."

"No!" She spoke sharply. "It's better now than later."

"But why not, Alma?" he pleaded. "We've always been so happy together. I don't understand. . . . Why not?"

She spoke more gently. "Can't you understand, Tim?"

"Do you love someone else?"
She shook her head.

"Is it that I'm too old?"
She evaded a direct reply. "Isn't it enough that I don't, I can't love
you that way?"

All the virtue went out of Tim.
She did actually consider him too old. It was true—she had been only kind to him. She was not to blame, she had never led him to believe she had more than friendship to offer. He had been living in yet another fool's paradise.

All had been for nothing. He saw in a flash how he had crumpled his life, done murder, sacrificed a beautiful and happy home, subjected himself to the terror of blackmail, for the sake of a shadow of a shade. Vanity, self-delusion. . . . All for nothing. . . .
He got up.

"I didn't see it that way," he said simply. "I'm barely 30; I didn't think it would make such a difference. . . . Of course, I know I look older. . . . It's not a thing one can argue about, though. I see that. . . . Let's go, Alma. I'll see you to the station, and then I'll go my own way. I don't think I'd better see you again, at least not just yet."

His exit, at least, could be made with dignity.

All for nothing!
Tim now began to let himself
go. He did not consciously dramatize his eclipse, give a deliberate outward symbolism to his inner degeneration, but whereas he had always in the past faced his problems with confidence and quiet persistence, he now ignored them with a hopeless and sullen indifference. He became apathetic.

During the daytime at least, he was able to hypnotize himself into a state when all thinking was practically suspended. He ate, worked, moved from place to place in a kind of numb trance. But during the nights painful thoughts closed in upon him. So long as he had mental occupation he could keep them at bay. He discovered anew the anodyne qualities of patience games and chess problems.

After a few nights of sleepless, tossing misery he gave up going to bed at his usual hour, and sat up till 3 or 4 over his cards or chessboard, till his eyes began to close from sheer exhaustion.
Then he would stumble upstairs and fall into a heavy sleep from which he was awakened with difficulty.

Dragging himself up in the morning, he seldom had time for a proper breakfast, for which he had, in any case, no appetite—
sometimes not even time to shave himself. He, who had always been so neat and well turned out, became slovenly in dress and appearance. He neglected things which he had, in the past, taken himself to be his duty to pull up into a sport coupe instead of merely five.

CAREER OF EDWARDS, WESTERN RESERVE COACH, ONE OF BRILLIANCE

TEAM'S RECORD REACHES 28 AS BOSTON U. FALLS

Cleveland School's Boss Not "Driver" Of His Athletes

STARRED AT WITTENBERG

Team to Play Dayton 11 Next Saturday

CLEVELAND, Oct. 26.—(UP)—Eight years ago a curly-haired young giant stood out in heroic relief as an underdog Wittenberg college football team battled a highly favored Ohio State eleven on even terms for three bruising quarters.

Late in the next period a badly cut tongue began to swell and through already puffed lips the young giant uttered to his teammates:

"I can't talk any more, but if any of you guys fold up I'll kick the devil out of you."

That was the flaming spirit that helped make "Big Bill" Edwards one of the greatest linemen in Ohio collegiate history and it is the same spirit that has carried him to a high place in coaching ranks.

Under Edward's astute direction Western Reserve has compiled one of the finest records of any college grid team in the nation. The Red Cats never have been beaten since he took charge of them after the untimely death of "Sad Sam" William prior to the start of the 1936 season.

String Now 28

When Western Reserve beat Boston University Saturday, it was the team's 18th straight victory, and stretched its string of unbeaten contests to 28. Only a tie with Ohio Wesleyan in 1935 mars an otherwise perfect slate.

Thanks to foresight by the wily Karl Davis, Western Reserve athletic director, the Red Cats get good material, but material alone isn't the story of the school's football success. The power behind the remarkable record is Edwards.

Edwards makes no claim of being a master-mind or a magician. Back of his success is a burning desire he has had since boyhood to be a great football coach, and when the opportunity to attain that goal came he was ready for it.

"Big Bill" gained his present high rank by coming up "the hard way." The son of a Massillon coal miner, Edwards had to fight for everything he got—and fight he did.

After a brilliant high school football career at Massillon, Edwards went to Kiski at Saltsburg, Pa. for a year of preparatory work and then enrolled at Ohio State. He captained the Buck freshman team, but the following season transferred to Wittenberg.

Standout Athlete

Throughout his career at Wittenberg, Edwards, at center, was the standout player of a team that then was one of the toughest in the Buckeye conference. A "rover" on defense, "Big Bill" was uncanny at diagnosing plays and then smashing them. He holds the distinction of being the only player in history to captain Wittenberg grid teams for two successive seasons.

Following graduation he served as assistant coach at Springfield high and then moved on to Fostoria high as head coach. From there he jumped to Western Reserve as William's assistant.

As to coaching technique Edwards isn't a "slave driver." He

SCHMIDT ELEVEN FALLING BELOW USUAL SCORING

COLUMBUS, Oct. 26.—(UP)—There was a loud rumbling through the ranks of Western conference football teams today and it was generated by Francis A. (Shut the Gates of Mercy) Schmidt of Ohio State.

Schmidt treasures big scores with the same fondness a miser does gold nuggets and as the Bucks prepared to slide into the easier half of their schedule the Scarlet and Gray mentor intended to see that the team's offensive record was bolstered.

Against four major foes the first half of the schedule, the Bucks accumulated only 46 points and unless Ohio State does a rapid "about face" the current eleven will compile the poorest offensive of any Schmidt coached team since the gruff Texan came here.

When Schmidt made his debut here in 1934, the Bucks ran up 227 points in eight games. Only in two contests that season did Ohio State fail to score less than 28 points. Colgate limited the Scarlet to 10 points and Illinois granted only 13. The Bucks trampled every other foe by lopsided counts.

In 1935 Ohio State aggregated 237 points. A field day in which the Bucks ran up 85 points against a woefully weak Drake team gave the total its biggest booster.

A year ago Ohio State had a point total of 160. More than half of the total was made against two teams, New York university and the University of Chicago. N. Y. U. was beaten 60 to 0 and Chicago 44 to 0.

YALE BULLDOGS AND DARTMOUTH MEET SATURDAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(UP)—The East and the Middle West share national attention this weekend when the dizzy football campaign rolls past the halfway mark.

The banner game will be played in New Haven's Yale bowl with Yale and Dartmouth colliding in the only battle pairing perfect record teams.

Minnesota's Golden Gophers, defeated by Nebraska, entertain Notre Dame at Minneapolis in a game that has been a sell-out for weeks.

The few remaining teams with clean slates meet formidable opposition and the list seems certain to be in for drastic cutting.

Yale, enjoying one of its best seasons in years, hasn't defeated Dartmouth since 1934.

The Minnesota-Notre Dame game was a "natural" late last year after Notre Dame had crushed the Northwestern team which shattered Minnesota's winning streak. Both teams will carry scars into Saturday's battle, but this does not detract from national interest.

does everything possible to make practice fun for his gridgers and that is one reason the Red Cats never have gone "stale."

The highlights of Edwards' coaching career:

A 33 to 19 victory over Cornell in 1935, a 32 to 3 triumph over Case last season and Saturday's 7 to 0 defeat of Boston U.

"The Boston U. victory was a sweet one," Edwards said, "The easterners called my boys 'bush leaguers' and they didn't like it. We wanted to show them up and did."

Edwards is only 32 years old and definitely on the road toward his ambition of being a "big name coach." His team seeks to extend its unmatched record Saturday when it meets the University of Dayton at Dayton.

TIGERS PREPARE TO PLAY HOSTS TO GREENFIELD

Booster Tickets On Sale For Dedication Tilt Under Lights

GRIDDERS WORK HARD

Landrum's Boys To Enter Fray In Good Shape

Greenfield high school's football team, paced by the dusky star, Sonny Jackson, invades the high school stadium Friday night to help dedicate the new lighting system.

The game is scheduled at 8 p. m. with a brief dedicatory service to be conducted between halves. William D. Radcliff will make a short talk for the improvement company that provided the lighting system, and a member of the board of education will accept it for the school.

The game is being carded as a booster contest with members of the Stooze Club and the improvement company selling tickets for $1 each. All persons who believe the lighting system has been beneficial to high school athletics should purchase a booster ticket. Admission to the game will be 50 cents and 25 cents. Booster tickets are available at the Hamilton and Ryan drug store, too.

Both bands, one of which will march on the gridiron between halves, will play before and during the game.

Jack Landrum's athletes, resting since their defeat at the hands of Mt. Vernon, that was in turn whipped 14-0 by Galion last week, are in splendid condition for the Greenfield game. None of the boys is nursing an injury of any kind, so no alibis will be offered if Greenfield should be too tough.

The Red and Black gridgers are drilling hard hoping to surprise Greenfield and many of the local followers who believe the invaders will be too fast. Greenfield was able to defeat Washington C. H. by only two touchdowns and lost last week to Wilmington.

Officials for the Friday night fray will be Burghalter, Heidelberg; Uridil, Ohio State, and Harris, Capital.

ADMIRAL TO RUN IN 'TEST' EVENT ON LAUREL TRACK

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 26.—(UP)—War Admiral, champion three year old of 1937, returns to the turf today.

The son of Man O' War, apparently recovered from a hoof injury suffered in winning the Belmont stakes last June, will run in a mile and a sixteenth handicap event for three year olds and upwards.

If the Admiral proves his fitness he will be entered in the $15,000 added Washington handicap on Saturday.

Today's race, the Churchill handicap, carries a purse of only $1,200. Among the entrants are Black Gift, Dark Beau, Threadneedle, Aneroid, Floradora, Evergold, Muscatine, Bottle Cap, Bootless and Tugboat Frank.

Despite the fact that the Admiral has been idle almost five months, he was made the favorite.

OHIO U. TO USE AIR IN ATTACK ON MARSHALL 11

ATHENS, Oct. 26.—Coach Don Peden and his Ohio university Bobcats started preparing for their big game with Marshall as they tried to forget the last five seconds of last Saturday's game in which the Flyers scored the only touchdown of the game to shatter a decade of Bobcat home wins.

The Bobcats plan to throw every trick in the bag at Marshall's powerhouse eleven in an attempt to retain at least a share in the Buckeye title.

With little hope that a lighter Bobcat eleven can pierce the great Marshall forward wall Coach Peden plans to polish the Ohio aerial attack in an attempt to outsmart the "Thundering Herd" in the air.

AL MCCOY EXPECTED TO FACE MAXIE IN GARDEN

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(UP)—Promoter Mike Jacobs was expected to name today the fighter who will oppose Max Schmeling of Germany, former heavyweight champion, in a 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden on December 17. Pugilistic circles believed that Young Al McCoy, of Boston, would be chosen.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WAIT FOR AN HONOR

IF YOU SEE that the declarer has the K or Q in the dummy and may possibly hold it in his closed hand, be careful about the way you use your A. If you play it on a small card, you will then set up two tricks for him in the suit, whereas waiting for an honor can limit him to perhaps one trick and may thereby beat his contract.

Deal: North. Neither side vulnerable.

One pair in a duplicate tournament got real ambitious with the North-South cards of this deal and landed in a contract of 6-Spades, whereas at all other tables the players were content to play for 4-Spades.

Fortunately for the daring pair, the West player made a bad slip on the second play and thereby enabled them to make an impossible contract. West chose as his opening lead the spade 10, three different suits having been bid by the opponents. South won the first lead with the spade J and realized at once that he needed those three remaining trumps in dummy. He therefore led to the second trick the diamond 5. When West played the A, South had his contract, for the diamond K took the next return, the heart A provided a discard for a diamond, and the diamond Q enabled South to toss away a losing club in the dummy. Three clubs were ruffed in the dummy and the contract made.

Had West held off on the first diamond lead, the diamond Q would never have provided a discard of the club in dummy and a trick would have been lost on that suit.

Tomorrow's Problem

Deal: West. Neither side vulnerable.

What play enables South to make 7-No Trumps after the lead of the heart 3?

COUNCIL TO TAKE ADDITIONAL STEPS TOWARD SEWAGE PLANT WORK

STATE APPROVAL OF PLAN NEEDED TO START TASK

City Must Begin Project Within Allotted Time Of Forfeit

NOTE ISSUANCE SEEN

Purchase of Motorcycle To Be Discussed

Issuance of bonds or notes in anticipation of a bond issue for the city's share of the expense of the disposal plant is one of the important matters for discussion before city council Tuesday evening. The Tuesday night meeting is an adjourned session from last Wednesday night, necessary due to the opening of the Pumpkin Show. Council recently accepted a grant of $81,363 from the Public Works administration for the government's share of the disposal plant project. Under terms of the federal offer the city has 14 weeks from the date of the offer, Sept. 30, to begin work on the project. $15,000 Votes Issued Circleville voters approved a $75,000 bond issue for the city's share of the expense. So far $15,000 worth of notes to cover preliminary expenses have been issued. Councilmen have a vast amount of work facing them to meet terms of the federal allotment. Plans for the plant are being prepared by Floyd G. Browne, sanitary engineer of Marion, O., employed by the city. These plans must be approved by the State Board of Health and P.W.A., the site must be obtained from the Container Corporation, the contract advertised and awarded, materials obtained and the actual work started within the 14 weeks. Another matter for consideration will be an ordinance to appropriate funds for purchasing a motorcycle for the police department. This ordinance was ready for presentation at the last meeting.

TOKYO'S TROOPS CLAIM TWO KEY TOWNS ON FRONT

The Chinese, sweat soaked and at the point of exhaustion, withdrew suddenly and slowly, fighting for every yard. It was not a rout. The Chinese hoped to withdraw all their men to the new line, roughly five miles west of the one which the Japanese cracked today, and there begin the fight anew.

For many days, day and night, the Japanese had thrust against Tazang. They laid down bombardments that crumbled its buildings and still the Chinese stood fast. The Japanese flanked it, north and south. Today it was a choice for the Chinese defenders whether they would stay and die, endangering their main forces by a reckless, hopeless resistance, or retire.

At dawn the Japanese opened a bombardment with airplane bombs and the shells of every gun they could bring to bear. A Japanese spokesman said that it was the first time in the 10 weeks and more of the battle that every agency of the Japanese war machine, army and navy, had cooperated on one objective fully.

Fight Lasts Hours

The bombardment moved forward—a creeping barrage. Then the Japanese tanks went lumbering over the blackened countryside, across no man's land and into the streets of Tazang, with the infantry just behind them. Armored cars brought up the rear. The tanks clanked through the streets of the little town from north to south and back again. Then the infantry went in. For hours, Japanese and Chinese fought hand to hand in the narrow, crooked streets among the piles of debris and the rotting bodies of the slain. The Chinese retreated, and at 3 a. m. EST, the Japanese completed their occupation.

Other shock units were moving westward north and south of Tazang toward Chenju and the Nanking railroad. The strategy of the Japanese was plain. They wanted to cut off all the Chinese at the south end of the Chinese line, bulged out eastward to Kiangwan in a dangerous salient. Their drive for the railroad meant that they would leave but a perilously narrow bottle neck, between them and the international settlement here, for the hordes of Chinese defending Kiangwan and the Chapel-North railroad station section to escape through.

It was because of the known danger of the Kiangwan-Chapel forces that the Chinese withdrew from Miaohang. A Chinese spokesman, frankly admitting the Japanese advance, said that the Japanese flanking movements cracked the Tazang line and that the Japanese then were able to push westward with such strength that it was necessary for the Chinese to retreat toward Chenju. This movement, in turn, endangered the men at Miaohang, at the extreme eastern bulge of the salient, and they had to retire on northern Kiangwan.

Wesleyan May Resign Buckeye, Paper Claims

DELAWARE, Oct. 26—(UP)—A possibility Ohio Wesleyan, one of the charter members of the Buckeye conference, will drop out of the compact little athletic circuit, was revealed here today by "The Transcript," campus publication. An editorial written by Robert Guelich, Transcript editor, said: "Ohio Wesleyan Drop Out of the Buckeye Conference?"

"It is unpleasant to think that the University would voluntarily step out of its traditional competition to join with the larger, yet mediocre Ohio Conference. Yet this may be the main topic of discussion at the meeting of the Alumni 'W' Club meeting following the homecoming game here Saturday with the University of Cincinnati."

"Losing teams do not keep the box office busy and the current season is one of the poorest the school has had during Coach George Gauthier's long reign here. However, surely no one will suggest we run out of the Buckeye conference simply because we are losing a few games."

Guelich then pointed out that for many years Ohio Wesleyan had been one of the leaders in all branches of sports. "This," he said, "Although we never had 'bought' players. We're justly proud that Wesleyan athletes likewise have been leaders in campus affairs."

Indication the "future athletic policy of Ohio Wesleyan" would be the principal topic of discussion at the alumni meeting Saturday was revealed by a communication Don Watkins, purchasing agent of the University and a former three sport star at the school, sent to "W" club members. Branch Rickey, general of the St. Louis Cardinals and a former Wesleyan coach, is president of the alumni organization.

It was believed that any recommendation the alumni group makes Saturday would be considered by the Ohio Wesleyan athletic board next month. The semi-annual meeting of the Buckeye conference will be held at Columbus either the first or second Sunday of December, and it was believed certain Ohio Wesleyan would decide on its course by then as 1939 football schedules likely will be drafted at that time.
